

ed to the problems of small local institutions, frequently museums or libraries, which hold archival collections. From time to time, as in the case of Victoria City's archives and in approaches to the provincial government, the Association has acted as the voice of professional archivists in the community at large. The desire to extend the work of the Association has meant having to overcome the severe limitations of a small, professional membership, scanty resources and the always formidable British Columbia geography.

The annual membership fee is five dollars; applications should be sent to the Secretary-Treasurer, Miriam McTiernan, c/o BC Central Credit Union, P.O. Box 2038, Vancouver, B.C. V6B 3R9.

History of Saskatchewan Project

Saskatchewan celebrates its Diamond Jubilee in 1980. In support of a two-volume illustrated history of the province, the Saskatchewan government has made available to the Saskatchewan Archives Board a special grant to administer the project and to commission John H. Archer to research and write it. A noted son of Saskatchewan with a varied career as teacher, archivist, librarian, historian and university president, Archer is being seconded for the period from his present teaching appointment with the University of Regina's Department of History and will take up a full-time position with the Provincial Archives in July 1978.

The Board anticipates that Archer's work will have general appeal, deriving from the wealth of documentation acquired by the Archives since 1945 and reflecting the quality of historical interpretation recognizable in the Board's thirty-year-old journal, Saskatchewan History, edited by Associate Provincial Archivist Douglas Bocking. Particular emphasis will be given to Saskatchewan following World War II and to those archival resources which reveal more of the cultural and social fabric of its people and institutions than traditional political history has so far done.

Seventeenth International Round Table Conference

Representing Canada at the Seventeenth Round Table meeting of the International Council on Archives (ICA) were Wilfred I. Smith and Bernard Weilbrenner of the Public Archives of Canada, and François Beaudin of the Archives nationales du Québec. In accordance with decisions made in 1976 at Washington (ICA General Assembly) and Nairobi (UNESCO General Conference), the theme of this Round Table was the "Constitution and Reconstitution of National Archival Heritages."

Four sessions were held to discuss the theme. Two examined the theoretical and legal aspects, including questions of common patrimony, right-of-ownership, territorial provenance, functional identification and respect for the integrity of archival groups. Another discussed practical concerns, especially the time and cost involved in the identification and preparation of records prior to transfer from one nation to another, and the provision of appropriate conservation and storage conditions in recipient coun-
