

Our Contributors

Jay Atherton is Director General of the Records Management Branch of the Public Archives of Canada. He was formerly Director of the Federal Archives Division, PAC. He has written previously on the history of the Public Archives (Archivaria 8) and in the field of labour history. He is a member of the Association of Canadian Archivists, L'Association des archivistes du Québec, the Association of Records Managers and Administrators, and the Society of American Archivists.

Derek Ballantyne, who has an interest in archival automated information systems, is presently working as Assistant Coordinator, Technical Archival Programs, Federal Archives Division, PAC. He formerly worked for the Association of Métis and Non-status Indians of Saskatchewan as a claims and historical researcher.

David Bearman, Deputy Director of the Office of Information Resource Management at the Smithsonian Institution, was previously the Director of the SAA National Information Systems Task Force. Among other duties, he currently directs the design and implementation of a generalized collections information system for a consortium of libraries, archives and museums within the Smithsonian.

Judith Hudson Beattie is the Head of Research and Reference at the Hudson's Bay Company Archives, Provincial Archives of Manitoba. Her custodial duties also extend to the holdings of the Map Section. She has previously worked as an archivist at the Centre de recherches en civilisation canadienne-française in Ottawa and at the Archives of Ontario.

Margaret Blackman is a professor of anthropology at the State University of New York in Brockport. She obtained her Ph.D. from Ohio State University in 1973.

Barbara Craig is an archivist at the Archives of Ontario where her responsibilities include custody of the records of the provincial Ministry of Health and acquisition of the records of public general hospitals. She is a doctoral student in archival administration at the School of Library, Archive, and Information Studies, University College, London, England. She was President of the Association of Canadian Archivists for 1983-84.

Judi Cumming is Chief of the Social and Cultural Archives Section of the Manuscript Division of the Public Archives of Canada.

Terry Eastwood is Chairman of the Master of Archival Studies Program at the University of British Columbia. He was an archivist in the Manuscript and Government Records Division of the Provincial Archives of British Columbia for eight years prior to his present appointment in 1981. He is a former General Editor of Archivaria and past president of the ACA.

Eldon Frost is Director of the Federal Archives Division of the Public Archives of Canada. Since joining the staff of the Public Archives in 1968, he has also been an archivist and section chief in the Manuscript and Federal Archives Divisions. He has served as President of the Eastern Ontario Archivists Association.

Connell Gallagher is University Archivist and Curator of Manuscripts for the University of Vermont Libraries, Burlington, Vermont.

Robert Hayward has worked in cartographic and federal government records since joining the Public Archives of Canada in 1972. From September 1982 he has been charged with implementing the federal access and privacy legislation within the Public Archives and is now Chief, Access Section, Federal Archives Division.

Rick Klumpenhower is a student in the Master of Archival Studies Program at the University of British Columbia.

Richard Lytle has been Director, Office of Information Resource Management, Smithsonian Institution since 1982. Prior to that he served as Archivist of the Smithsonian (1970-1982); Archivist of Rice University (1968-1970); Archivist of Washington University (1964-1968); and Assistant Local Records Archivist for the Illinois State Archives (1963-1964). Mr. Lytle received a Ph.D. in library and information science from the University of Maryland in 1979. His other degrees are M.L.S. (University of Maryland, 1978); A.M. (Washington University, history, 1961); and B.A. (Rice University, 1959).

Douglas McCalla is a professor of history at Trent University in Peterborough, Ontario. He is co-editor of The Canadian Historical Review and editor of the Ontario series of the Champlain Society publications. He is also working on a book on the economy of early Ontario.

Nancy McMahon is an archivist in the Economic, Communications, and Indian Affairs Records Section of the Federal Archives Division, PAC.

Anne Morton is the archivist responsible for twentieth-century records at the Hudson's Bay Company Archives, Provincial Archives of Manitoba. She is also the Secretary of the Association of Manitoba Archivists.

Eric Sams has a Ph.D. in musicology and has published studies of Hugo Wolf and Robert Schumann. His interest in cryptanalysis dates from the Second World War when he served as a cryptanalyst in the British Intelligence Corps. His recently published edition of Edmund Ironside contends that this play was written by Shakespeare. Dr. Sams resides in Surrey, England.

Corrado Santoro is a graduate of the University of Windsor where he received an M.A. in Canadian history in 1980. He also obtained a master's degree in archival administration from Wayne State University in Detroit. He has been the Reference Archivist in the Department of Archives and Special Collections of the Elizabeth Dafoe Library at the University of Manitoba since 1982. Mr. Santoro has chaired the ACA Copyright Committee since May 1984.

Shirley Spragge is an archivist at the Queen's University Archives in Kingston, Ontario and chairs the ACA Publications Committee. She is also preparing a doctoral thesis at Queen's on the Upper Canadian Loyalists.

Hugh Taylor was Provincial Archivist of Alberta, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia successively, and Director of the Archives Branch at the Public Archives of Canada. He has also taught in the Master of Archival Studies Program at the University of British Columbia. He is a former President of the Society of American Archivists and was granted the rare distinction of an Honorary Life Membership in the Association of Canadian Archivists in June 1983. He has published numerous articles on archival theory and practice; his early training and experience was in England. He is now retired and living in Wolfville, Nova Scotia.

Peter Waite is a professor of history at Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Bruce Wilson was Chief of the London Office of the Public Archives of Canada from 1981 to 1984. He has been employed by the Public Archives since 1976. He is presently on the staff of the Public Programs Branch of the PAC. Among his many publications are As She Began: An Illustrated Introduction to Loyalist Ontario (1981) and The Enterprises of Robert Hamilton: A Study of Wealth and Influence in Early Upper Canada, 1776-1812 (1983). Dr. Wilson will be General Editor of Archivaria for 1986-88.

Rod Young is an archivist in the Social Affairs and Natural Resources Records Section of the Federal Archives Division, PAC. Among other duties, he is responsible for the records of Health and Welfare Canada and Employment and Immigration Canada. He also chairs the ACA's Canadian Committee of Labour Archivists.