

Our Contributors

Kerry Badgley has been an archivist with Library and Archives Canada's Government Records Branch since 1998, and is currently responsible for the Agriculture, Fisheries and Oceans, Canadian Food Inspection Agency, and Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation portfolios. From 1992 to 1998, he worked in LAC's Access to Information and Privacy Division as an analyst and, later, as manager. He received a B.A. in History from Trent University in 1986, and an M.A. (1988) and a Ph.D. (1996) in History from Carleton University. He has published articles in Canadian Papers in Rural History, the Journal of Canadian Studies, and other academic journals. In 2000, he published Ringing in the Common Love of Good: The United Farmers of Ontario, 1914–1926 (McGill-Queen's University Press), and is currently the English-language editor of the Journal of the Canadian Historical Association.

Marcel Barriault travaille aux Archives nationales du Canada depuis 1999. Il est présentement archiviste dans la section des Archives politiques de Bibliothèque et Archives Canada. Il a obtenu son B.Ed. (avec concentrations en anglais et en histoire) de l'Université de Moncton et sa Maîtrise ès arts en littérature anglaise de la University of New Brunswick. Sa thèse s'intitulait « Réveille » : A Critical Anthology of Acadian Literary Texts in Translation, 1604–1940. Ses intérêts de recherche comprennent la littérature canadienne comparée, l'histoire et la généalogie acadiennes et françaises et la théorie queer.

Margaret J. Dixon, an archivist with the Government Records Branch of Library and Archives Canada, currently works in the Transportation, Economic, Science, and Social Section. She has had the opportunity to work with the records of various departments including Public Works, Transport Canada, and Industry Canada. Previous to October 2000, Margaret worked for a number of years with the political records of Prime Ministers Trudeau, Mulroney, and Clark. Margaret graduated from McMaster University (1976, 1988) and Carleton University (2000).

Paulette Dozois is an archivist with Library and Archives Canada and is currently responsible for the records of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade. In the twenty-six years she has worked for LAC, she has had a myriad of responsibilities in both private and public records. She graduated from University of Western Ontario in 1975 and Carleton University in 1976 with an M.A. in Canadian History.

Terry Eastwood is Associate Professor in the School of Library, Archival and Information Studies at the University of British Columbia. He was the founding professor in the School's Master of Archival Studies Program and Chair of the Program from 1981 to 2000.

Ian Forsyth is University Archivist/Information and Privacy Coordinator at Simon Fraser University in Vancouver, British Columbia. He previously held positions as Deputy Archivist of Ontario and was the first Freedom of Information and Privacy Coordinator for the Ontario provincial archives. At SFU, he manages an integrated corporate records management, FOI/Privacy, and archives program. He also teaches a course on the administration of access to information and privacy law in the School of Library, Archival and Information Studies at the University of British Columbia.

Tom Nesmith is an Associate Dean of Arts at the University of Manitoba and the founder and director of the university's master's program in archival studies in the Department of History. Prior to joining the faculty of the University of Manitoba, he was an archivist at the then National Archives of Canada from 1978 to 1990. He was editor of Archivaria from 1984 to 1986 and, among other editing and publishing activities, he edited and contributed to Canadian Archival Studies and the Rediscovery of Provenance (1993), a joint publication of the Association of Canadian Archivists and the Society of American Archivists. He was a member of the SAA's Committee on Professional Education and Development. He is on the editorial board of Archivaria, the ACA's Education Committee, the City of Winnipeg's Records Committee, and the Saskatchewan Archives Board. He obtained undergraduate and master's degrees in History at Queen's University and a doctorate degree in History at Carleton University.

Catherine Nicholls is the Archives Systems Officer, Records Management Program at the University of Melbourne, Australia. Between 1995 and 2001, Catherine was the Archives Systems Officer for Records and Archives Services at Monash University. She has a B.A. in History and a Masters of Information Management and Systems (Honours) from Monash University.