Erratum

The print edition of Archivaria 74 (Fall 2012) contains an error on page 209 of the article “Paper Memories, Presented Selves.” The text introducing the quotation cited in footnote 38 should have referred to Jennifer Douglas and Heather MacNeil, as indicated in the footnote. The editors apologize for this error.

Copyright

Starting with Archivaria 56 (Fall 2003), authors of articles, reviews, notices, obituaries, and letters have formally granted Archivaria a non-exclusive licence to publish and distribute their work in the journal; however, since the journal’s inception, authors have retained the copyright in their work. Archivaria maintains the most recent eight issues in a Reserved Collection available only to members and subscribers; all requests for permission to reproduce articles from the Reserved Collection should be directed to the general editor. Requests for permission to reproduce articles from the earlier issues (in the Main Collection) should be directed to the individual authors. Any reproduction of a work must include an acknowledgement of its original publication in Archivaria.

ACA 2013:

Community as Archives, Archives as Community

Communities are the framework of our identities, our history and our lives. Online and offline, connected by geography, ethnicity, language, sexuality, interests, professions, friendship and kin, our lives are a lattice of communities.

Join us in Winnipeg, city of communities and meeting places, for an exploration of how archival consciousness arises in communities and how community consciousness has arisen among archivists. In addition to three exciting plenary sessions featuring international experts, the program is organized into three session streams:

- ✓ Aboriginal Communities and Archives: Explore Aboriginal perspectives on archives and stories; consider the role of archives in social justice, truth and reconciliation; discuss how archives can contribute to social memory in Aboriginal communities;
- ✓ Archives of Communities: Archives are built around communities tangible and virtual, providing the foundation of community identity and creating a place for participatory archiving. Speakers will illustrate the power of archives to unite communities such as ethnic groups, the queer community, individuals brought together by memory and grief, geography and more;
- ✓ The Community of Archivists: Discuss issues around professional identity; the changing role of the archivist; get updates on the building of standards, collaboration and new approaches to acquisition, appraisal, description; and continue the discourse on the utility and challenge of the digital and the virtual.

This year's conference not only promises a thoroughly stimulating and engaging program, but also offers opportunities to join colleagues in experiencing Winnipeg's irreplaceable community spirit. Social events will highlight a few of the unique eccentricities, charms, and attractions of Winnipeg and surrounding area. Or you can explore what the city has to offer on your own! ACA 2013 will allow you to be connected to the conference and your colleagues like never before through Facebook, Twitter, and the ACA website. And the ACA 2013 app will ensure that you have all the conference information you require no matter where you and your mobile device may be.

The ACA 2013 conference hotel will be the Delta Winnipeg. Among its many features are a central location in downtown Winnipeg within walking distance of many of the city's attractions, a rooftop pool, excellent dining, a fantastic lounge, and strong Wi-Fi throughout the guest rooms and conference facilities.

For additional information, or to register, visit the ACA 2013 section of the website at <http://www.archivists.ca/content/annual-conference>.

Note: Registration opens on March 1, 2013
