

transferred to the Archives staff from the Legislative Library, attended the Public Archives of Canada in-service training course in September.

* * *

The 12th Report of the Saskatchewan Archives Board, for the period 1964-66, was published at the end of the year and is available free of charge. It lists all accessions during the period.

* * *

MANITOBA

Towards the end of 1966 the Civil Service put into operation the first step of a new pay plan for professional personnel. All professional positions (including Archivists and Librarians) were evaluated under a Professional Officer classification with a general increase in salary. A further increase is anticipated in 1967 when individuals within the new classifications will have received "merit" ratings.

* * *

The Archives again in 1966 supervised a program of photographing buildings of historical and architectural significance sponsored by the Manitoba Historical Society. The project included the preparation of historical background on the building, historical figure or architect. Approximately 180 buildings are represented by the 1964 and 1966 survey.

* * *

Accessioned during the year were the diaries of D. U. Campbell (1869-1873) an Ontario man imprisoned by Louis Riel during the Red River disturbances. A surprising discovery in the Winnipeg area during the year was a substantial collection of letters of Louis Riel and his family covering the period 1869-1920. This material included the draft of a letter of Louis Riel in 1876 to President Hayes of the United States outlining a plan for the re-establishment of a Provincial Government by Riel in the west.

The papers of T. A. Crerar, housed by the Archives for some fifteen years, were transferred during the year to Queen's University.

Public Records transferred to the Archives included the Minute Books of the Protestant and Catholic sections of the Board of Education 1871-1890 and the Advisory Board of Education 1890-1962; Orders-in-Council 1878-1933; correspondence, minutes, working papers of the Post War Reconstruction Committee 1944-1946.

* * *

ONTARIO

Miss E. Harlow was appointed Archivist of the University of Toronto last October. She was awarded her A.M.L.S. by the University of Michigan in 1965. The staff of the University Archives consists of 2 professional librarians and 2 clericals.

As the Archives have only recently been organized as a separate section of the University of Toronto Library system, within the Department of Rare Books and Special Collections, its holdings are not yet great. Manuscripts deposits, official records (printed or manuscript), photographs, microfilm, theses and miscellaneous materials occupy